FIVE YEARS FOR CAPT. FISH FOR BURNING YACHT

Captain John A. Fish of New York, who was convicted of burning his yacht, Santa II, in Edgartown harbor in 1914, was sentenced by Judge Hale in the United States District Court today to five years in the federal prison at Atlanta, Ga. On appeal from the sentence he was held in $10,000, which is $5,000 more than his former bail.

Under the old statute bearing on this offense, which is technically known as "barbary," Captain Fish could have been sent to prison for life. New York friends of the prisoner, among them Mrs. Anna T. Hammond, came to Boston to testify to Judge Hale their good opinion of Captain Fish's general reputation. The captain has a pension of $100 a year from the British government for bravery in the Boer war. This was urged by his counsel at the trial. The prisoner received sentence calmly. When Deputy Marshal Bancroft took his arm to lead him to the cage he drew away, stepped over to his friends and thanked them courteously for their trouble to come here as character witnesses. Then he submitted to the deputy.

The Fish case developed from the refusal of marine insurance companies to pay $15,000 policies on which the captain tried to collect after the burning of the Santa II. Fish's counsel, Guy A. Ham, gave notice that an appeal would be taken from the sentence. The case will proceed to the Circuit Court of Appeals on a writ of error. When the increased bail was named, Fish and Mr. Ham began efforts to furnish acceptable sureties.

Parents Deserted 2 Babes in Attic

A pitiful story of the desertion of two children in an attic room, No. 1909 Washington street, was brought to light when William Kilday, five years old, and his little sister, Mary, were brought into the Roxbury Juvenile Court then were sent to a home and their parents, Thomas Kilday and Mrs. Katherine Kilday were arraigned. Mrs. Kilday was sent to the House of Good Shepherd and the father was put on probation.

SAY T. H. DEWANEY THE CASH

NEW YORK, March 12.—John P. Lenefsey of Chicago, who recently gave out a statement in London that Colonel Theodore Roosevelt after receiving the hospitalities of the Brazilian government in Rio Janeiro, presented a bill for $2,000 to the Historical Society of Rio Janeiro, for a speech before the society, arrived today on board the Maratona and reiterated his statement. "Every word of it is true," said Lenefsey. "Roosevelt put the Brazilian authorities to an expense of at least $40,000 for his entertainment and then turned around and charged his hosts $2,000 for a speech that lasted but a few minutes."

While Lenefsey was talking with ship news reporters, Drury Albert McMillen of St. Louis, who said he was present when Colonel Roosevelt called on McMillen to confer with him, said: "I was present when Colonel Roosevelt tendered his bill," said McMillen. "Everything Mr. Lenefsey has said is absolute truth. Roosevelt lectured before the Historical Society in Rio Janeiro, and at the conclusion of the lecture presented the bill, which was paid."

Lenefsey added that he held no enmity toward Colonel Roosevelt, but that his action had greatly damaged the character of a closer understanding between the United States and the South American republics.

REFUSE TO DEFEAT WALSHTON FIGHT

In his fight to oust Adjutant-General Gardner W. Pearson, Governor Walsh prepared today to ask the Supreme Court to pass upon the constitutionality of the Act of 1912 which gives the Adjutant-General a five-year tenure of office. Article X in the Constitution reads: "And the Governor shall appoint the Adjutant-General."

If the Adjutant-General continues in office five years he may hold the post under five separate Governors. The committee is unable to say anything to say about appointing him. If the Supreme Court finds that the five-year tenure law is unconstitutional, not goes Pearson.

If the court upholds the law, there are various possibilities. The legislative committee on Military Affairs was scheduled today to act on a bill repealing the five-year tenure act and empowering the governor to name an Adjutant-General. The committee is unable to say whether the repeal will be passed. If the act is repealed the governor will have a free hand. If the five-year tenure law is unconstitutional and on the repeal bill, he will try some other tack.

Meanwhile Adjutant-General Pearson is "waiting his turn." He is prepared, his friends say, to make all legal resistance and if he were defeated would head his way.

Various men are mentioned as possible successors of Pearson if he goes. One is Governor's way. Another is that of a former Chief of Police, who was a member of the staff of the Fire Commissioner of Boston.

Boys Arraigned for Watertown Killing

Nathan Abrahamian and Manon Garabedian, the Watertown boys indicted for the murder of Ingham Junior-Orpheo in Watertown, February 16—he was a Turk and had sneered at them as Christian dogs—were today arraigned before Judge Keating in Superior Court at East Cambridge, pleaded not guilty, and were held without bail. Judge Edward P. McManus of North and C. J. Muloon of Somerville have been appointed as their counsel.

PARIS, March 12.—In the presence of many literary and dramatic lights, Georges Richepin, a member of the French Academy, and Pierre Proudhon, author of a play now being performed in this city, fought a sword duel today in which the latter received a slash in the wrist arm. Both duellists were accompanied to the scene of the encounter by their wives. The duel originated from words spoken by Proudhon to Mme. Richepin.

The building is owned by M. J. McLean of No. 11 Parkman street. The ground floor is occupied by Fogel & Ryan, carpenters.

Cambrian in Port Reports Derelict

Officers of the Leyland liner Cambrian, in port today from London, say they were in wireless communication with the ship for several days early in the week and that the Mexican reported having passed, about 12 miles east of Boston, the forward part of a wooden ship which had evidently been cut in by a collision. The wreck is floating bottom up.

BOSTON MANAGER DECLARES THAT STORE ACCOUNTS WERE JUGGLED

District Attorney Pelletier may call a special session of the Grand Jury next week to take action on the Siegel case. This became known today after employees of Henry Siegel's Boston store decided to go to the District Attorney with their stories. The employees charge that deposits were accepted at the bank here after the bank was insolvent. One employee even declares that the bank received a deposit from him thirty days after the actual failure.

MAY ASK WARRANTS HERE.

District Attorney Pelletier, if he finds the evidence warrants, will ask indictments against the responsible officials. He today conferred with a representative of the New York District Attorney's office. Siegel is under indictment in New York for receiving deposits after his bank was insolvent—the very thing of which he is accused by his employees here. William Friday, former manager of the Boston store, has declared that a system of falsifying books and keeping double accounts was in vogue here, as it was in New York. Siegel is under indictment in New York for such a transaction as this.

DOCTOR HELD AFTER DEATH OF CHELSEA GIRL

Dr. Josephus Bouley of No. 54 Carey avenue, Chelsea, was arraigned in Chelsea court today charged with an illegal operation as a result of the death of Margaret A. Patrick, aged twenty-four, at the Front Hospital. The girl identified Dr. Bouley as the man who performed the operation. Dr. Bouley was brought to the hospital by Lieutenant Tucker and Patrolman Spinsky. The girl died at 4 p. m. today.

Mrs. Patrick, who was 21, was taken to the hospital where the cause of her illness was discovered. She mentioned the name of Frank Lane of No. 211 New York and Boston streets, as having been a witness. Siegel is living at a New York hotel where his expenses are paid by an old friend. The district attorney is $5,000 on a continuance till next Friday.

FILIBUSTERS READY TO DASH INTO MEXICO

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Conditions along the Mexican border continued to be a cause of great anxiety to government officials today. Dispatches reached here early in the forenoon with the information that Filibusters are gathering on American territory to dash across the border and attack General Carranza on his march from Agua Prieta to Juarez.

Two troops of the Thirtieth U. S. Cavalry have been rushed from the regiment's headquarters at Columbus, N. M., to Valparaiso, a New Mexico town near the border about fifty miles west of El Paso. These troops have reported that they have not yet found a trace of the Filibusters said to have organized and armed themselves to join the forces of the Quevedo brothers and Juan Cresco south of the New Mexico line. A careful patrol of the border is maintained east and west of Matamoros.

The Quevedo band is reported to number 500 men now, and with the additions from the United States would be able to harass and possibly prevent the passage of Carranza through the State of Chihuahua.

Though the Seventeenth and Ninth Infantry Regiments are the only troops that will be sent to the border at present, it is reported that the war department has under consideration plans for mobilizing another whole division of the army in Texas. The second division is now there and the first division will be the next to go if the developments warrant such action. The first division includes the Eleventh Cavalry, now at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.; the Third, Fifth, and Twentieth Infantry Regiments forming the first brigade; the first battalion of engineers near at the Washington barracks; batteries D, E and F of the Third Artillery stationed at Fort Myer, Va.; and Company G of the Signal Corps, Fort Wood, N. Y.

The Ninth and Seventeenth Infantry already under orders to proceed to the border form the second brigade of the first division.

Twenty-four hours have brought little if any improvement in the Mexican situation. Governor Colquitt of Texas is causing further worry by his declaration that Texas will protect her citizens if the government fails to do so.

MAY FILIBUSTER AGAINST PLAN TO RUSH TOLLS REPEAL

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The bitterness of the approaching fight over the administration bill to repeal the free tolls clause of the Panama Canal law was evidenced today by the demand of House members for time to speak on the bill.

Unless the resolution allowing only 15 hours' debate is amended, a Filibuster will be inaugurated by the foes of repeal. A score of members of the House want to make extended speeches on the bill. Many others desire "a few minutes" to discuss the administration plan, and it is likely that more than a hundred members will extend their remarks in the "Record" by printing their views.

The importance of the question, it is asserted, requires the fullest discussion. Those who will lead the fight for repeal are Representatives Adamson, Sims, Stevens of Minnesota and Davidson. The opponents will include Majority Leader Underwood, Minority Leader Mann, and Representatives Doremus, Knowland, Kahn and Murdock.

Under the order was issued raising the embargo against shipping arms into Mexico, General Bliss had troops of soldiers scattered along at different points on the Rio Grande, but, as I understand, under orders from Washington, these troops were called in to Fort Sam Houston.

It is my intention to continue to vigorously enforce the rights of this State and protect the lives and property of its citizens to the very best of my ability with the means and force at my command.

TROOPS ON WATCH AND WAIT USELESS SAYS COLQUITT

Austin, Tex., March 12, 1914.
Editor of the AMERICAN:
Your telegram of last night reached me this morning. The sending of additional 1,500 troops by the Washington government to the Mexican border is not objectionable, for the reason that it will inspire some confidence.

The practical effect of these additional troops in restraining bands of murderers and bandits, from crossing the Rio Grande River to carry on their pillaging and robbing will be but slight. The troops watching and waiting on the "watch and wait" policy will not have the practical effect desired.

With permission to pursue the bandits across the river, more effective results can be accomplished with one hundred Rangers than with ten thousand troops on the "watch and wait."

The frontier along the Rio Grande from El Paso to Brownsville is nearly 800 miles, and there are distances of 500 miles along the river where there are no troops.

Until the order was issued raising the embargo against shipping arms into Mexico, General Bliss had troops of soldiers scattered along at different points on the Rio Grande, but, as I understand, under orders from Washington, these troops were called in to Fort Sam Houston.

It is my intention to continue to vigorously enforce the rights of this State and protect the lives and property of its citizens to the very best of my ability with the means and force at my command.

—O. B. COLQUITT,
Governor of Texas.

NOW BELIEVE McADOO HAS WON MISS WILSON

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Washington society today is convinced that the engagement of Eleanor H. Wilson, the youngest daughter of President and Mrs. Wilson, to Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, will be announced within a few days, particularly in view of the fact no denial has come from the White House of the story of a second romance of the administration that has been told for a week in drawing rooms here.

The romance, which is interesting Washington as few White House love stories have, is said to have grown apace while the Wilson family was at the summer capital in New Hampshire. There, it is said, Secretary McAdoo, who is fifty and a grandfather, wooed and won Eleanor Wilson, who is twenty-four, while her sister Jessie and Francis B. Sayre were planning their wedding.

Secretary McAdoo, naturally, is a man. Society has observed Mr. McAdoo and Miss Wilson together frequently. Lately some of Mr. McAdoo's closest friends have named him "Dancing Mac."

Mr. McAdoo is a widower and has six children, one son and one daughter married. Recently a son was born to the eldest daughter in Arizona.

WIFE IN PRINCETON DAYS.
When his son, Francis H. McAdoo, was married last Spring, President Wilson and his family motored to Baltimore for the wedding ceremony.

Mr. McAdoo, it is said, first met Miss Wilson while her father was president of Princeton University.

Soon after Mr. Wilson became governor of New Jersey, Mr. McAdoo was one of his Presidential nominees and in the prevention campaign was often at Princeton and Trenton. On these trips he usually met Miss Wilson.

Since Mr. Wilson came to the White House, Secretary McAdoo has not always called on business. Many an afternoon after office hours he has been going out the side entrance of the Treasury and slipping through the iron gates to the east entrance to the White House.

Miss Wilson on many occasions was the only caller to the tennis matches between Secretary McAdoo and Assistant Secretary Hamlin of Boston on the White House tennis courts early last Summer.

ELEANOR WILSON ATHLETIC.
Miss Wilson was educated in private schools at Princeton. She attended an art school in Philadelphia the last few years of her residence in Princeton studying painting. She is a daring horsewoman, a tennis player of exceptional ability. In fact enjoys all outdoor sports. She devotes much time to charitable and social center work.

HUMAN GEMS WORTH $65,000 FOUND ABROAD

NEW YORK, March 12.—A private detective firm today announced that $65,000 worth of the jewels stolen from Mrs. John H. Hagan at Narragansett Pier had been recovered. The total thefts were $125,000. The jewels, according to the detective, were found in Amsterdam and Paris, whether they had been taken by the hand of the international thieves was accomplished by the police.

That the jewels have been recovered has been denied by Mr. and Mrs. Hagan, who are in New York. But their denial is in line with their policy since the recovery of the jewels seemed so far as possible.

Following the recovery of $15,000 worth of the jewels worth $65,000, it was learned today that private detective firm in Europe on the trail of the balance of the jewelry and the thieves.

One of the hand is said to be a handsome woman of culture and education, who has been traveling with many of the jewels found in Amsterdam and New York. Some of the jewels were recovered in London and others in Amsterdam, but the thieves are believed to be in hiding in London.

The chief detective said today that he had made a search of the records of the American and Paris finding of the location of some of the jewels.

"We traced the thieves to Amsterdam and to Paris," said the detective, "and we have found out the part of the jewelry."

"We found that the hand used an automobile in their raid on the Hagan home. They applied for a license in New York. They applied for a license in New York. They applied for a license in New York."

"We found that the hand proceeded at once to Boston, went to New Haven by train, then to Fall River and New York. By means of tickets and travel checks we traced the hand to this city and learned on what steamer they sailed to Europe."

"There is no doubt that the burglar who did the Hagan job were concerned in other jewelry thefts in this country, and we expect to find other mysterious burglaries that have been carried out in fashionable circles."

SAILOR A NEW TYPE

Changed Man, Says Captain "WEARS THIN SOCKS"

WASHINGTON, March 12.—All the romance has gone from the sailor man's calling and he has degenerated into a mere creature wearing thin socks, low tan shoes and a straw hat and coming aboard with a suit case, according to Captain W. J. Hunt of Cleveland, a veteran master on the Great Lakes. He argued against the LaFollette seaman's bill. He said the picture of the rugged sailor—the man of tackle and oil skins and seaboots—sketched by representatives of the Sailors' Union, was a memory of 35 years ago.

LOST SCHOOL HEAD FOUND IN STREET, DAZED

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., March 12.—James H. Hartley, principal of the high school at Greenland, six miles from here, who has been sought since last Tuesday, was found by the police in a dazed condition on Water street, this city, today. Principal Hartley is suffering from the effects of alcohol fever, contracted in Porto Rico. He was obliged to give up teaching there and return North on account of that disease.

Mr. Hartley is now under medical care. He believes the disappearance was due to mental trouble caused by the fever. They are puzzled, however, how he could remain unharmed for three days in a condition where he was so well known.

He is about forty years old, a graduate of Lawrence, Mass., and a graduate of Dartmouth, class of '79.

DEMY RUMORS THAT ASQUITH PLANS TO QUIT

By HERBERT TEMPLE.

LONDON, March 12.—Leaders of the Liberal party today scoffed at reports printed in some of the London morning papers that Premier Asquith would announce his resignation in parliament on Monday. The rumors arose from the announcement of the Premier that he would have a general statement relative to the home rule and Ulster—a subject on which he was to speak on Monday.

Friends of Premier Asquith declare that there would be nothing in the report, because Asquith had pledged himself to carry on the program of the government, which is in Liberal hands. At present home rule for Ireland is the chief item in that program. However, the rumors caused much amusement in Liberal circles, especially at Chamberlain David Lloyd George, one of the Premier's allies.

ROUND UP 58 HOBBOES IN RAID ON B. & M. YARD

Friday, the Thirteenth, had hideous meaning to the hobo fraternity of Greater Boston today. The Cambridge police rounded up fifty-eight of their number, who had comfortably snuggled in police, observation and sleeping cars of the Boston & Maine in the East Cambridge yards.

Frank Warner, railroad officer, and Patrolmen William G. Andrew and Patrick Harvey of Station 3, East Cambridge, went into the yards at 2 a. m. in the hope of getting a few tramps. They found them in droves. It is estimated that about 100 escaped.

They did it by locking the car doors on the tramps until they could shift them from one car to another. Three wagon trips were needed to lug the tramps to the station.

The station was jammed to overflowing. Judge Almy's session of East Cambridge District Court today was like a hoboes' old home week.

The tramps were brought before him in three trains. Each one was fined $10 for trespass. There was not 10 in the entire fifty-eight who went up for eight days.

Judge Almy wondered why the railroad couldn't keep after its tramps better. He said he didn't think a company that has watchmen who go to their work as so judiciously would go into the hands of a "reveler."

CALL POLICE TO QUELL CHAINY SYMPATHIZERS

Three witnesses testified that Captain Clair P. Chainey, deputy Revere police head, was intoxicated on at least one occasion. Their testimony was given at the Town Hall hearing, resumed today on charges accusing Chainey of neglect of duty, lack of discipline, conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, using the police automobile for pleasure purposes and other offenses. He was suspended from his command within an hour after the present Selectmen were elected to office.

The witnesses were Watch and Ward agents, and were hauled as they testified. The 1,000 spectators became so threatening at the end of the hearing that Sergeant John J. Dyer and a squad of policemen had to surround the three agents and see them safely aboard a car.

The biggest sensation was furnished by Patrons Thomas J. O'Hara of the Revere police. He testified that he saw Acting Chief Chainey come out of a place under surveillance on Ocean avenue at 2 o'clock one morning. O'Hara also told of an alleged assault upon him by Patrolman McLaughlin, a brother officer in the Revere station, and Chainey's failure to give a hearing on the matter, although he had promised to do so.

O'Hara said McLaughlin assaulted him in the presence of Eugene Graham, John P. O'Hara, and John O'Hara, who were with him at the time. He heard an argument between O'Hara and McLaughlin, and that they saw McLaughlin either strike or attempt to strike O'Hara as he fell to the floor. The Watch and Ward agents who testified were Arthur H. Stone, William T. Taylor and Jefferson H. Parker.

Wife Tells of Wearing Pants to Reach Home

BANOR, Me., March 11.—How a wife donned trousers in order to be with her husband when they took themselves forced to steal a ride out of Boston to Halifax, was told today by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roach. Roach is twenty-one, his wife, seventeen. They were arrested riding between the cars. Mr. Roach said:

"My husband and I left Halifax for Boston two weeks ago at the invitation of his uncle, Albert Hector of Foster street, Woburn, Mass. and we arrived there, expecting that he would get work for us. In fact his uncle promised to find him a job on the Boston & Maine, but we stayed there two weeks and there was no job."

"We decided to go home, but neither of us had any money and we did not know how we could get home until we thought of stealing a ride. I got a pair of men's trousers because I thought I could get around better in them, as my skirt is tight and I thought they would be warmer. But it was a long, cold ride. The cinders came into our eyes all night long from 1:30 Wednesday morning until we arrived in Banor this morning and it was terrible. We had to stand up all the way, but we were still willing to try it further."

U.S. NEWS

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

The position of Republican Senators from the larger cities on the calling of the Constitutional Convention becomes a matter of great moment on Tuesday night when the "Conventionalists" reviewed their great victory of yesterday in the House of Representatives.

Whether the people of Massachusetts shall have the opportunity to express themselves on the subject of calling a convention to consider amendments to the Constitution is said to be largely with Republican Senators like Walter McLean of Fall River, Andrew Loyola of New Bedford, James H. Teller of Lawrence, Dudley of East Boston, and Nicholas of Boston.

Seventeen of the forty Senators are Democrats. They are Progressive without hypocrisy. The people, therefore, must look for support from Republican Senators representing the industrial and commercial centers.

With Democratic members dismissing a majority of the Committee on Constitutional Amendments has been announced in the House, the "Conventionalists" withdrew.

The Democrats sought to have the "Constitutional" bill withdrawn. They were defeated, 120 to 115. The Democratic vote was from his party's pledge on the subject. The Democratic vote was from his party's pledge on the subject.

At the closing hour on the previous day the Republican leader of the House, Representative Charles F. Cox of Ward 12, Boston, offered a "substitute" bill.

The Car bill, beaten by only two votes, a roll call was immediately begun at once on the Cox bill.

From the beginning it was apparent that the Car bill would be substituted if it received any Republican support at all. It got very little.

That little, however, was quite enough. By a vote of 112 to 87, the Car bill—substituted to the people the question of holding a Constitutional Convention was substituted.

It is now on the floor of the House. The probabilities appear to be that the Car bill will be substituted to the people the question of holding a Constitutional Convention was substituted.

On both bills, the Democratic leaders are presently subsiding. Democrats have rarely shown such unanimity in the past.

On the members of the new party, on the contrary, prevented a debatable issue.

The Progressive platform—the Democratic platform—has declared its opposition to this question of Constitutional Convention to the people.

The Progressive went further. The Democratic platform has declared its opposition to this question of Constitutional Convention to the people.

There is almost as much bluffing to baseball as poker, and the best managers are often the best bluffers. "Larry" Doyle, the second baseman of the Giants, is a good friend of mine. I asked him one day during the world's series last Fall whether McGraw was a smart manager.

"Is he smart?" asked "Larry" in reply. "Say, he's the guy that wrote both the book and lyrics of managing, as they say in the show business. He knows what you ought to do before the play comes up, and he fines you if you don't do it. I know it cost me ten dollars in

Fletcher is one of those players in the National League that players reckon to be far more valuable to a club than the ones who give him his name. The fans realize the importance he plays around second base, but they don't know it.

Several of the pitchers tried this on me when I was first brought into fact company. I made up my mind to let them know I was not a nervous, so I used to crowd the pitcher closer after a pitcher had thrown a ball.

Pitcher's Weakness Known Far and Wide.

When a young player comes into a league, all the pitchers search his hitting style for a weakness. As soon as they find it, they begin to aim at it. The White Sox pitcher, for instance, is known to be a right-handed pitcher. The first thing the pitcher does is to aim at his "benn" to get him away.

Breathe More and Better Air. See the World. Give Health to Your Whole Family. Make Your Day Longer and More Valuable

GET AN AUTOMOBILE, Expensive or Cheap, the Best That You Can Afford. Go to the Automobile Show, See the Wonderful Work of Skilled Mechanics and Inventors—Even a Small Income Will Take Care of a Good Lasting Motor Now.

Copyright, 1914, by the NEW COMPANY

Eagles live to be a hundred years old—and older. Fresh air does that for them.

The automobile will do for you what the eagle's wings do for him. Get an automobile.

The trout, living in swift running water, is marvelous for speed, health, gameness and beauty. Water to him is what air is to you. Plenty of swift moving water means a brilliant fish. Plenty of swift moving air means a healthier, more brilliant human being. Nothing is more dismal than the wide-mouthed sucker fish, lying at the bottom of the stagnant pond—get an automobile.

Now is the time to realize that the marvels of automobile building and using are only BEGINNING.

You can buy for $5,000 an automobile WORTH EVERY CENT of the money.

You can buy for $500 an automobile that would be well worth $5,000 if it could not be bought for less.

Where thousands of automobiles have been sold tens of thousands WILL be sold.

Whoever talks of national "automobile extravagance" might as well talk of railroad extravagance. We need automobiles as we need railroads—and before long good roads plus cheap machines will make the motor more important than the steam car in passenger carrying.

The dull muddled take out their little pencils and calculate how much automobiles have cost the country. What of it?

Railroads have cost the country thirteen thousand million dollars for construction alone—and scores of thousands of millions for upkeep—and they have been cheap at the price. We need more railroads.

Automobiles are cheap at their price—and we need more, millions more.

The country needs a machine for every one of its six million prosperous farms. The machine will make every one of those farms MORE prosperous, giving the farmers time, leaving the horses for slow farm work, saving the poor wife a chance to stop drudgery, making the young man content to stay on the land.

Every one of our millions of farmers needs a car and WILL HAVE it.

Every little business man, plumber, carpenter, butcher, baker, needs and will have a car.

Why talk of "the end of the automobile boom" when there is no boom, when any sane man will see the country NOW has millions of citizens without a car that should have one and could use it economically.

As well talk of an end to the ELECTRIC LIGHT BOOM or "gas boom" as to an automobile boom.

The motor has helped men to conquer space—it is here to last forever, and its only competitor will be the safe, cheap flying machine, still some distance away.

The flying machine, never falling, using no tires, with good air roads all around it, will be the greatest distance killer. While waiting for that, GET AN AUTOMOBILE.

Your kind of car is READY FOR YOU. Go to the automobile show and get it.

You can take your family twenty miles with twenty cents worth of gasoline. That is cheap enough.

A car decently cared for will run ONE HUNDRED MILES FOR EVERY DOLLAR OF THE PURCHASE PRICE.

And it will save easily more than its cost in actual time saving, even if the owner's time is not worth more than three dollars a day.

So much for the cheap cars which have been marvellously developed.

There are cars CHEAP at all prices, from the lowest to the highest. A man's duty is to buy the BEST that he can afford. He owes that to his family, himself, and to the manufacturers who are entitled to support.

Get the BEST you can afford to pay for. But be sure it is the best CAR, not merely the higher price. Read descriptions, compare values. Visit the automobile show and let the young men tell you exactly WHY. You will find them the most plausible, convincing and inspiring lot of merchants that this earth has seen since the days of the Phoenicians.

Hear their story. THEN GET A CAR.

Vanity is foolish, but the automobile has nothing to do with vanity or show.

A family can save what the automobile costs, if it must save. With a small car, the business man may live in the country more conveniently than in the city.

The car takes him to his work—or his suburban train. It does all the errands for the family. The wife can run it. It takes the children to school. In hot summer weather, it makes a seaside home of the little house fifteen miles from the shore—three-quarters of an hour in refreshing, swift moving air, a bath in the ocean, the ride home—all the family happy. That is just ONE thing that the cheap motor will do among a thousand things.

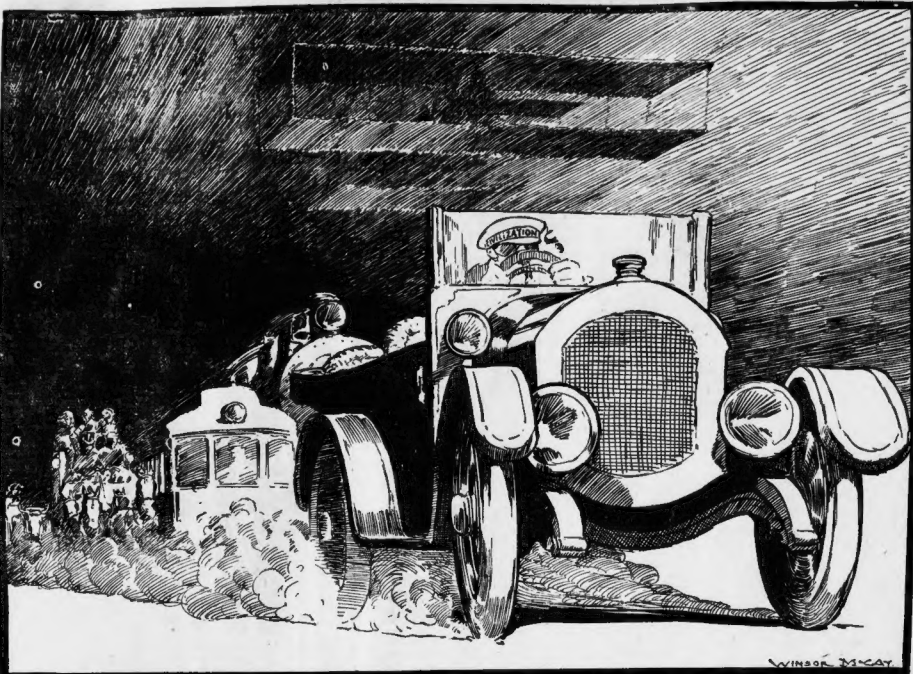

The AMERICAN very reasonably predicts that the car of the workman will come to be the machine that can be profitably and economically owned by the workman at $2 a day. Already we have the car that means no extravagance, but economy to the man who earns $25 a week.

The day of the automobile is only beginning. Join the army of automobile owners.

Get the best, study the subject, know your own car thoroughly. GET AN AUTOMOBILE.

THE AUTO AND THE FLYING MACHINE—THE VANGUARD OF CIVILIZATION

Out of the minds of men sprang first the automobile and then the aeroplane, distancing the old stage coach, the laboring ox team, and bidding fair to distance the modern trolley car and even the express locomotive.

Thousands of minds brought these great inventions to their present state. Thousands of minds are working to carry them still further for the service of man.

Civilization has developed with invention, and no inventions of any times are filled with so much promise for civilization as the invention of these wonderful new means of locomotion, which soon will annihilate time and space, and make near neighbors of the peoples of all the world.

The Two Sisters

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

Chapter XII.

KELLEY DELAINE looked slightly annoyed as he noted the ill-concealed curiosity with which Somersky regarded Julia. The girl, herself, glanced from one man to the other, mystified by the attitude of each. It did not occur to her that this stranger was the person of whom her sister had talked. Caryl had purposely omitted mentioning his name, so when at last—and with evident reluctance—Deleine spoke of it, Julia was not impressed with it.

"Miss Marvin," the author said gravely, still standing with uncovered head, "please allow me to present Mr. Somersky."

Somersky bowed low, his eyes all on the girl's face.

"I am honored at meeting you, Mr. Marvin," he said courteously. "I am so happy as to have met your sister already."

"Indeed?" returned Julia. "You know my sister?"

"One of your sisters at least," suggested Somersky. "But I beg that you have two—a younger one, whom I know, and another, much older than either of you."

"No," she insisted. "I am the only sister Miss Marvin has in my family." Then the explanation of his error presented itself in her mind and she laughed. "We are evidently talking at cross-purposes," she said, "and the girl you think is my sister is some other Miss Marvin's sister."

"Indeed she is not!" protested Somersky. "Unless the charming secretary in the employ of this lovely man here is not your sister."

As he spoke Julia remembered all that Caryl had said of Delaine's color, and her face sobered instantly. She felt an instinctive distrust of the man and arose quickly to her feet.

"I am getting late and I must go home," she remarked, turning to Kelley. "Good evening, Mr. Delaine."

"I am going to walk a part of the way with you," Delaine declared to Kelley. "Somersky! I'll phone you tonight or tomorrow morning about that horse."

But Somersky was not to be thus lightly dismissed until he had explained his mistake to this attractive girl.

"Pardon me for intruding just a moment longer," he pleaded, falling into step with Julia and Delaine, as they started toward the garden entrance, and at his time of anxiety the pair halted.

"I speak to you an apology, Miss Marvin, for my blunt manner. I have explained his mistake to this attractive girl."

The Sea Lions—and Love

By ELBERT HUBBARD

ON the rocks at the Cliff House in San Francisco there are sea lions.

When Balboa tumbled head first over a cliff and discovered the Pacific, there were sea lions there. They tumble and roll and quarrel and play and roar and bark. Sometimes there are more, and sometimes less, but always the fraternity is represented.

The sea lion is a great traveler—he may go ten thousand miles in a year, but he has places he calls home, and to these he annually returns. Many of these sea lions at San Francisco are known by name—they have distinguishing scars and marks of individuality that cannot be mistaken. Simple folk think that sea lions are all alike, but this is a great mistake. Some are good-natured and generous, others mean, snail, quibbling and terrible.

I regret to say that the sea lion is like New York society, "superficially monogamous."

On the rocks at the Cliff House one sea lion named "Tart" is king. Tart is successor to King Tatt, who became monarch in 1893. In fact, Ben Butler was a fortune teller. Everybody who came here got acquainted with him—from a distance. You can hire field glasses from waiters at the Cliff House, and these bring you the lions up to close that you can hear the cubs cry, and listen to the language of the others, which is often quite a publication.

Ben had the rocks. He held the fort until 1899, when a large trout-baiting attorney of an sea lion camp over from the Farallones Islands, who became monarch in 1899. Schools—In Educating the American Child It Should Never Be Forgotten That Is What He Is.

By DR. G. H. PARKHURST

WHEN the course of study in our public schools is fast brought to its best, it will be found to contain a great deal that is fitted to make of our boys and girls thoroughbred Americans. Americanism is a branch of study all by itself, and one of the most necessary in the construction of a complete curriculum. The average of our young people know too little about America, either its past or its present, to make patriots of them, and for that reason it is a great while without patriots.

It is much more important that our boys and girls should be made familiar with the history of the United States than with that of Greece or Rome or even of England, and that ten weeks should be given to the events that occurred from 1776 to 1789 and from 1861 to 1865 to every one who is devoted to the biography of Xerxes, Alexander the Great, Hannibal, William the Conqueror, Napoleon and the Duke of Wellington.

What our country awoke from, what were the struggles of its infancy, what it cost to keep it alive, the expenses in blood and lives sacrificed and the shed of all this, and for that reason it is much more important that our boys and girls should be made familiar with the history of the United States than with that of Greece or Rome or even of England, and that ten weeks should be given to the events that occurred from 1776 to 1789 and from 1861 to 1865 to every one who is devoted to the biography of Xerxes, Alexander the Great, Hannibal, William the Conqueror, Napoleon and the Duke of Wellington.

Glorious Victory of Granson

By REV. T. B. GREGORY

IT was great work that the Swiss mountaineers did at Granson. They were there. The great victory won by the little handful of patriots will always interest men, since Liberty is a theme of personal charm, a boon that all mankind, through all the ages, venerate and love.

While the world stands, therefore, the story of Granson will be read with pride and joy, and upon its thrilling interest for us the ages shall have no effect.

Charles the Bold, of Burgundy, a knight who aspired to be King, made it clear to the Swiss that he had designs on their freedom, and before the men of the mountain were fairly ready for him, Charles was upon them with an army forty thousand strong.

The outnumbered Swiss were three to one, but every Swiss was a man. The Burgundians were mercenaries, and the battle soon showed the difference between the Swiss and mere hirelings. Before the terrible pikemen of the Swiss the Burgundians dispersed in all directions, like chaff before the wind.

They were routed, broken, foot and horse, and the Swiss, with the help of the French, were able to get away with a small loss.

Granson was a great victory. It was the first time that the Swiss had won a battle since the time of the Golden Legend, and it was the first time that the Swiss had won a battle since the time of the Golden Legend, and it was the first time that the Swiss had won a battle since the time of the Golden Legend.

Glorious Granson! It was there that the Swiss first showed their nationality was laid. Since Granson the liberties of the mountain republic have been secure.
